

Steady Increase In Deaths Over Holiday Period

Count Shows 157
Traffic Fatalities,
65 by Drownings

By United Press

A holiday week end that isn't officially a holiday week end has seen a steady increase of deaths on the nation's highways and throughout recreational areas.

Although American motorists turned in an encouraging record for the official holiday period from 6 p. m. Wednesday until midnight Memorial Day, there were many tales of personal tragedy.

A nationwide survey by United Press showed that 99 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents during that period. The toll exceeded a normal loss of 75 lives for a non-holiday Thursday in May by 24, but fell 21 short of the National Safety Council estimate of 120 deaths.

By 9:50 a. m. e.d.t., the number of deaths counted by the United Press included 157 dead in traffic accidents, 9 in plane crashes, 65 by drowning, and 34 in a variety of accidents for a total of 265.

California and Illinois had the worst records, with 14 deaths each. Pennsylvania was next with 13, Indiana reported 10, and Michigan and Texas each 9.

17 FATALITIES REPORTED IN ILLINOIS

By United Press

Seventeen people have died in accidents in Illinois since the Memorial Day holiday began at 6 p. m. Wednesday. The holiday ended officially, at midnight, Thursday.

Most of the victims were killed on the highway—which claimed 14 lives. Three died in separate drowning accidents.

Robert Hamlett, 34, Chicago, bet friends he could swim to an island in the Illinois River near Starved Rock. He lost.

The other drowning victims were: Kenneth King, 14, Roxana, and Alison Kilgore, 9, Aurora. King fell into the Mississippi River near Hartford when a boat rammed a barge near a loading dock.

The Kilgore girl was drowned on a canoe trip with her father, Lee Kilgore, 32, who was rescued. The boat overturned in Wonder Lake, McHenry County.

Army Engineers Support Wabash River Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Wabash River might destroy or cut off the New Harmony Bridge in southern Indiana unless protection is provided, the Army Engineers said in testimony made public today.

Col. R. E. Smyser Jr., chief of the Army Engineer Ohio River Division, testified before the House Public Works Appropriation subcommittee in support of a $405,000 appropriation for the project.

The project would protect the west side of the bridge from the shifting channel of the Wabash. It would cost $737,900 in all and is scheduled for completion next November.

The engineers' justification of the project said in recent years "a series of bends have been developing" in the river "one of which is endangering the bridge structure by caving of the right bank."

"Due to this situation, the bank protection is essential to prevent this bridge and the west approach from being destroyed," the statement said.

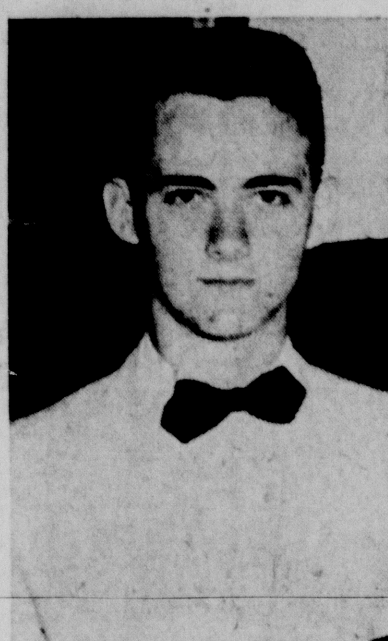

Under questioning by the subcommittee members, Smyser said, "The Wabash is taking a severe cut, and one day will, if not controlled, probably go behind the bridge and cut the bridge off."

.24 Inch Rainfall

A total of .24 inch of rain fell during the night, Harrison Kibler reported, who added that the Middle Fork gauge read 14.16 feet this morning.

Petitions Ask Galatia Vote on Unit District

If Successful
Will Be First
In Saline County

Petitions are now being circulated by voters in the Galatia Community high school district which request the county superintendent of schools to call an election for the purpose of voting on a Community Unit school district. If the election is successful, Galatia will have the first unit district in Saline county.

Although this type of district is common in the state of Illinois (more than two-thirds of the state already thus organized) there are not many such districts in the southern part of the state. Although there are several advantages in this type district, probably the greatest is the fact that the state allots more state aid for schools so organized.

If the election is successful, the Galatia Community High School district and the underlying grade school districts will become one district with one board of education, one tax rate, and one budget. Not more than three of the seven board members can be elected from any one township. All the schools in the district are inspected annually by the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and all of them, elementary and secondary, must be approved or no state funds are granted. This assures the public that all of their schools will be cared for. Some people have the mistaken idea that funds can be spent for one school and withheld from another.

In the face of rising prices the Galatia Community high school has found it impossible to stay within the budget. Recently the voters turned down a proposal to increase the educational tax rate for the high school district. The coming election will provide an opportunity for residents to secure additional state funds for their high school at no expense to their elementary schools.

There will be a public meeting at the high school on Tuesday, June 4, at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of discussing the community unit school district. The speaker will be a man who has had practical experience with the organization and operation of such districts. There will be an opportunity for the audience to ask questions. It is hoped that there will be a large crowd at this meeting.

British H-Blast Expected To Set Off New Protests

TWO CHICAGOANS en route to Mississippi left Route 45 near Middle Fork bridge this morning, their auto crashing through a guardrail and the car landing, wheels upright, in waist-deep water. Both men were injured, one seriously.

Swimming Pool To Open Sunday

Roscoe Johnson, superintendent of the Harrisburg Township park swimming pool, announced today the pool would open Sunday at 1 p. m., and will continue operation throughout the summer.

The pool annually opens on Memorial Day, but because of the heavy rains recently, it was delayed until Sunday.

Elect Dr. Noel Taylor Southern Baptist Vice P.

The Southern Baptist Convention, meeting in Chicago, May 26-31, elected Dr. Noel M. Taylor, executive-secretary of the Illinois Baptist State Association, as second vice-president of the Convention. Dr. Taylor is a native of southern Illinois. Born south of Carterville in the Grassy Creek township, he graduated from University High school in Carbondale and from the Southern Illinois University.

Following graduation from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., (where he received the Th. D. degree), he became pastor of the First Baptist church in Marion. In 1946 he was elected executive-secretary of the Illinois Baptist State Association which position he has held for the past eleven years.

The Southern Baptist Convention, meeting in Chicago for the second time within the past seven years, now numbers 30,854 churches with 8,708,823 members. The Convention has work in 41 of the 48 states in the United States.

Dr. Taylor's election as a vice-president of the Convention marks the first time an Illinoisan has been elected to such an office. Congressman Brooks Hays of Arkansas was elected president.

Announce Low Bidders on Two Projects In Southern Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Apparent low bidders on seven airport construction projects were announced today by Director Arthur E. Abney of the Illinois Department of Aeronautics. Two projects are in southern Illinois.

Plans at McLeansboro Municipal airport call for light grading base construction, bituminous surface treatment wearing surface for the north-south runway, connecting taxiways and apron; stabilization of existing gravel entrance road and auto parking area; installation of a low intensity runway lighting system, including a lighted wind cone. Apparent low bid of $61,930 was submitted by J. D. Barter Construction Co., Harrisburg.

At Williamson County airport, Marion-Herrin, plans call for grading, drainage, sub-base and base construction and bituminous surface course for an apron extension. Franklin Asphalt Co., Carbondale, was apparent low bidder with a bid of $27,417.

Auto Crashes Through Route 45 Guard Rail Into Water; Two Hurt

A Chicago man was badly injured and his companion was hurt less seriously early today when their auto crashed the Route 45 guardrail near Middle Fork bridge northeast of Harrisburg and plummeted about 30 feet into waist-deep water.

Seriously injured was David McNeil, 33, of 121 South Honore avenue, Chicago. McNeil suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, cuts and bruises, and probable internal injuries.

Joe Lee, 34, of 2033 West Washington, Chicago, suffered neck and head injuries but it was believed there was nothing serious.

Both are in Lightner hospital. The automobile, terribly wrecked, smashed through the guard rail, plunged down the steep embankment and stopped with the wheels upright. State Policeman Adolph Sweat, who with State Policeman Guthrie Alexander covered the crash, declared.

Granddaughter of J. Wilburn Davis Gets National Award

Mrs. Carolyn Gibson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Carl N. Travis of New Iberia, La., and granddaughter of J. Wilburn Davis of 115 West South street, Harrisburg, received the national foundation award of Sigma Alpha Iota honor society for women musicians on Friday, May 24.

This award was made on the basis of high scholastic standing and character. Mrs. Gibson during her years as a music student at Southwestern Louisiana Institute, a branch of the Louisiana State University, has been elected to other honor societies including Omega and Sigma Alpha Iota. She is also Phi Kappa Phi, the highest academic honor awarded to SLI students.

Mrs. Gibson received her Bachelor of Music degree in the school of Liberal Arts and was cited for high academic honor during the Commencement exercises at 3 p. m. Sunday.

Korean Wife and Young Son Leave On Mercy Flight to Bedside of Husband

TOKYO (AP) — The 20-year-old Korean wife of an American soldier left with her young son today on a mercy flight to the bedside of her critically injured husband in Arkansas.

Mrs. Tae Moon Cherry carried gently in her arms her son, Marvin, 1, whose sudden illness sent him to Tokyo Army Hospital Friday and made it uncertain they would be able to make the trans-Pacific trip.

American Red Cross officials escorted mother and son to the DC6 specially chartered by the Army for the flight. They took off from Tokyo at 4:10 a. m. e.d.t. and expected to reach San Francisco at 2 p. m. e.d.t. Sunday.

Mrs. Cherry, near hysteria from worry, had threatened to storm Tokyo Army Hospital and take her Sweat said the two were driving toward Harrisburg en route to Greenville, Miss., and failed to make the curve in the rain around 5:30 a. m.

Lee told Sweat that he did not know how deep the water was and swam to shore. He said he got McNeil onto the upright understructure of the car and then sought help.

A Gaskins funeral home ambulance took the two to the hospital.

Tornadoes, Rain Hit Texas

Tornadoes and torrential downpours Friday night roared into Texas in the wake of other severe weather which has scarcely allowed the Lone Star state to get back on its feet.

The violent onslaught took at least five Texan lives while 11 inches of rain was reported at some points. Throughout the rest of the nation, relatively calm weather prevailed although rain fell in many areas and lightning knocked out power transformers in Vermont.

Flash floods overflowed into San Antonio and Fort Worth, and five families were forced to flee their homes in Bracketville, Tex. Winds up to 70 miles an hour destroyed two homes at Monahans, Texas, while lightning struck and killed two 14-year-old boys at Arlington who were traveling on a motor scooter.

Fortunately, the 11-inch rain which sloshed over La Pryor, Tex., settled on open range land and trickled off with little damage.

Several areas of showers and thunderstorms were patched into the warm, humid stretch from the Ohio Valley to the New England and the mid-Atlantic states, but rainfall east of the Appalachians was generally light.

Within seconds after the blast, Canberra twin-jet bombers roared into sample the fall-out to tell scientists how efficient this bomb was.

Autos Collide

Cars driven by R. C. Davis, 50, Harrisburg, and James C. Phillips, 36, Detroit, collided at the Routes 45-13 intersection in Harrisburg about 7:30 a. m. today. Phillips pleaded guilty to a charge of failure to yield the right-of-way and was fined in the court of Justice of the Peace O. L. Woods.

Superweapon Has Power of 5 Million Tons TNT

Device Detonated
Over Christmas
Island in Pacific

LONDON (AP) — The explosion of Britain's second and mightiest hydrogen bomb was expected today to touch off a new wave of protests against nuclear weapons tests both at home and abroad.

The thermonuclear device was detonated Friday in the skies over the Christmas Island proving grounds in the mid-Pacific. Air Vice Marshal W. E. Oulton, the British H-bomb task force commander, said the bomb's power was in the megaton range, or equivalent to one million tons of TNT. Unofficial reports said the superweapon packed a punch equivalent to that of five million tons of TNT.

United Press staff correspondent Richard Vumard, one of the newsmen who witnessed the awesome blast, reported it was believed to be the first known test of an H-bomb capable of delivery by an unmodified medium bomber. In his report, Vumard said it was a truly operational weapon which Britain's "V" series bombers can haul from bases in Britain to targets as far away as Moscow.

Third Atomic Power

Britain joined the United States and the Soviet Union as a major nuclear power when it touched off its first hydrogen bomb on May 15. The test brought angry reaction from the opposition Labor Party and official protests from atomic-conscious Japan.

Vumard was one of a handful of correspondents who witnessed the H-bomb test from the deck of the 1,590-ton British frigate H.M.S. Alert, some 35 miles away.

The device was dropped from a white-painted RAF Valiant jet bomber at an altitude estimated at some 45,000 feet between Christmas and Malden Islands.

Squadron Leader David Roberts, 33, the pilot, dropped the bomb in a complex corkscrew maneuver that set it spinning into space like a pitcher's curved ball to the four-jet bomber raced to safety.

"Bomb gone," radioed Flight Lt. Kenneth Lewis, 33, the bombardier. A few seconds later, a tremendous glare washed out the sun above the test area. White light bore through the protective goggles of observers standing with their backs to the blast on the ships 35 miles away. Observers had been warned not to look at the blast for 15 seconds.

Blast Rocks Observer Ships

Some 50 seconds after the "bomb zone" announcement cracked thru the radio receivers, the shockwave brought the rumbling crash of a thousand thunderclaps to the observers on the six-ship task force standing 35 miles away. The ships rocked gently.

A huge multi-colored fireball hung high in the sky—changing colors as it swelled, yellow, orange, red, pink. A giant swirling stem reached up from the sea to form the familiar mushroom of the atomic explosion.

Within seconds after the blast, Canberra twin-jet bombers roared into sample the fall-out to tell scientists how efficient this bomb was.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Diving In A Submarine Can Be Humdrum But Vivaldy Important; U. S. Navy Has Young, Competent Subma-
riners; Russia Is Far Ahead
Of Hitler On Subs.

WASHINGTON. — Mrs. Joe Williams, wife of the chief of staff of the submarine force of the Atlantic fleet, remarked to her husband the other day: "You've spent the day on a submarine. I can smell you."

Captain Williams, who had been cruising off the Atlantic coast near the U. S. Navy's submarine base at Groton, Conn., did not smell of French perfume. His clothes had a peculiar, but not unpleasant odor of clean steel and fusel oil.

Sniffing my own clothes as I got home from Groton, I kissed my wife and expected to be smelled too. I was disappointed. Mrs.
P asked no suspicious questions that might have given me an opening to tell her of my deepsea exploits on a killer-submarine,
the USS Tirante.

Despite that, I'm going to write about them. Maybe she'll read the column.

Actually the anti-submarine warfare work of the U. S. Navy is one of its most important jobs.
For with Russia having a known total of at least 450 submarines,
and with subs now able to fire
guided missiles off the American

coast, this is the most dangerous potential attack faced by the United States.

Hitler, incidentally, had only 57
subs when he started World War II, and he almost put Allied shipping out of commission.

HUMDRUM DIVE

Actually, however, diving underwater on a killer-submarine is a humdrum affair — at least in peacetime. It's still and motionless, except for the hum of the motors. No waves. You'd think you were sailing on an absolutely calm sea. And since there are no portholes to look out, you haven't the ghost of an idea where you are.

When the sub first starts to dive, you feel a gentle, tilting motion, and you wonder what would happen if the Tirante should keep on diving, smack into the bottom of the Atlantic ocean. You also wonder, when you start coming up, what would happen if the sub should bump into a fast-rushing liner, headed for New York. After all, you're right in the trans-Atlantic shipping lane.

But Lt. Com. George Hecker, skipper of the Tirante, doesn't seem worried about any of these things. He gives orders in a quiet voice as if taking one of his three children out for a stroll on the streets of Baltimore where he used to live.

"Take her down, Jim," was his command to Lieut. James O'Keefe of Nutley, N. J. O'Keefe barked
a couple of quick orders in the conning tower. Two enlisted men jumped down the hatch into the control room, sat beside two wheels which control the fins and we nosed our way gently toward the bottom of the Atlantic.

TELEVISION UNDER WATER

Except for the dials on the side of the boat, the ordinary land-lubber like me couldn't have a ghost of an idea how deep we were.

Keeping the boat on the same level after diving is ordinarily quite simple. However, we were diving with television camera focused on the crew, and once,
when we rehearsed a shot, a man
at a wheel forgot it was a rehearsal
and started to "take her down" deeper. Commander Hecker quickly reversed him.

After we got down, we "snorkled." This, again, is a relatively simple process—if you know how. A snorkel, or long tube, is projected out from the sub, just above the surface of the water,
which takes out exhaust fumes
from the engine, brings fresh air in. The snorkel was invented by the Dutch and perfected by the Germans during the war. With it, a sub can stay under water indefinitely. Without it, the crew must come to the surface once a day for air and to charge the batteries.

The problem on a submarine is partly mechanical, partly human.
When a crew of about 50 men live together in close, cramped quarters, sometimes weeks on end, they have to understand human nature.

During the war, Tokyo Rose described American submarine commanders as ruthless Yankees who smoked big black cigars and virtually ate little children. Actually the officers of the Tirante are youngsters in their twenties or early thirties. They never get excited, know the first name of every crew member, know how to win respect and confidence.

SUBMARINERS LIKE EACH OTHER

Submariners seem to like their jobs. When I asked C. W. Wil-iams of Caryville, Tenn., why he had been a submariner most of his life, he said:

"I guess it's the association.
You sort of get to know people.
The officers and men all know
each other and stick together."

When Williams showed me the crew's living quarters, I marveled
at how they could work together
below decks for the long periods of time. A submarine is about the length of a football field. In fact, it's a good walk from bow to stern
and you get a lot of exercise lifting your knees up under your chin
to pass through the compartment doors which shut off one part of the ship from the other in case of trouble.

But most of the ship's space is taken up with machinery, torpedoes, and fuel. In the torpedo room, men sleep on top of the torpedoes, under the torpedoes, and all around the torpedoes.

In the mess, the crew eats in three shifts. The cook operates in a tiny space, but turns out amazingly "good chow." An ice cream freezer produces ice cream under water. Milk is also produced under water and it tastes just as good as any fresh milk. I should know. I'm a dairyman.

Every inch is utilized. Along the corridors are cases for maps, emergency instructions, codes and signals. Each man has a small locker, plus a bag alongside his bunk for toilet articles. There are no extensive wardrobes
aboard a submarine.

It's a cramped life. Yet most submariners don't leave. They like it. Which is a good thing for the U. S. A.

For, when you see those long,
sleek-nosed greyhounds of the deep lined up alongside the docks in Groton, plus submarine tenders,
net tenders, floating drydocks,
mothballed subs and unfinished subs, you begin to realize how intricate and all-important the submarine defenses of the United States are.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
(Written for NEA Service)

The season is fast approaching when children who go to amusement parks will want to ride on the merry-go-round. For our little ones there seems to be a great thrill in going round and round.
They have not yet learned about boredom. Neither have they discovered the satisfaction of broad service in a changing world.

As adults we do not want to go round and round on a circular or repetitive track through life.
We want new experiences. We want to mingle with many people. When we walk with God we want to broaden our service so that each experience offers new opportunity.

Opportunity lies before everyone. We do not have to seek it.
We merely have to find the way to make the most of every moment in the service of God and our fellowmen.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Oh that I were as in the days of my youth!—Job 30:12

We would like though to have the wisdom of old age — no one longs to be as foolish and inexperienced as he was as a callow youth. We would make the same mistakes, no doubt! It is fortunate that we can't live life over again.

Saline County Garden Club
Meets With Mrs. W. E. Pankey

The Saline County Garden club met in the home of Mrs. W. E. Pankey 119 West South street, Tuesday, with Mrs. Michael Resh-eter, president, presiding. Roll call was answered by the 22 members present, each giving a garden hint. The two sisters who are visiting with Mrs. Bert Gaskins Sr., Mrs. W. H. Morgan and Mrs. Maude Marks, were guests at this meeting.

Mrs. Ray Durham, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Harry Harrelson, whose subject was "Planting in May for Autumn." Mrs. Harrelson spoke of the first spring show of bulbs, shrubs, flowering trees and iris, as being a dream cherished all year through. She spoke of roses, phlox, lilies, daisies and all other perennials that fill the gardens with color, beauty and fragrance through the spring until July. She suggested that now is the time to plan for color for August through October, annuals being superior for making a grand show of color. These may be planted as early in the spring as the ground permits.

For the dry, hot months, Mrs. Harrelson said that petunias, blue and red sage, marigolds, Zinnias, alyssum, the new Gloriosa daisy, bells of Ireland, pinks, golden fleeces, prince's feather, the new petunia, glitters, giant mum marigolds and cannas may be used in many interesting ways. Rose plants, new rose orange, white bouquet or mixed plants may be set in large pots to make a spot of color by a dull spot or on a terrace to make a quick color area in a matter of minutes. Five tall geraniums, grouped in a large pot will give a good effect, or dwarf azaleas in partial shade, will last for several weeks. The hanging type tuberous begonias are beautiful.

For a lovely fall show, Mrs. Harrelson continued, dig or divide chrysanthemums and plant in a pot for a garden show. Asters are effective in blue, pink or white. In this way the fall garden may be as brilliant as the days with deep gold, yellow, red and bronze colors of the season. Roses give color beauty with a minimum of care. The Floribundas and Grandifloras are hardiest. Dahlias for late summer should be planted after frost. Gladioli may be planted from early spring to August. Delphiniums bloom in June and July and again in late fall from spring planting. The new semi-dwarf hardy Oregon asters have good orange color. Butterfly weed is a mild bloomer in June with the lilies and again in the fall, if cut back, concluded Mrs. Harrelson.

Mrs. J. M. Hart followed on the program with the Garden calendar for June.

Table flower arrangements, one fashioned of carnations and the other of red roses and California privet, were made by Mrs. Resh-eter.

It was announced that the June meeting will be a covered dish luncheon in the home of Mrs. J. M. Hart.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Randall Reed, Mrs. Bert Gaskins and Mrs. Nellie Cline.

CURB SHAVER—Women who daub on lipstick in public may now share the view with men buzzing their bristles as they wait for the bus. Reporter Jack Warfel adds to the general confusion at a main intersection in downtown Cleveland, Ohio, as he stops at the curb to shave. Passersby couldn't figure out how he was doing it, but if they followed that white wire down to his pocket they'd have the answer. An importation from Nuernberg, West Germany, the electric shaver operates on three small flashlight batteries carried in the pocket.

Air Force Fires Guided Missile

CAPE VANAVERAL, Fla. — A guided missile, believed to be an Army Jupiter, was launched here late Friday with a thunderous rumble that was heard for 10 to 15 miles in all directions.

The Air Force declined to identify the type of missile or comment on the firing.

Several hundred persons on the beach three to five miles from the launching site saw the "shining rocket" gain altitude and quickly disappear from sight.

"It was rising so fast it was almost out of sight before we could hear it," one witness said. "We saw it take off, almost straight up."

It was the first time the three-seat $60,000 aircraft had used the White House grounds. In previous tests they landed in a park just south of the White House.

Hill Explains Rules for Disability Payments Under Social Security

How disabled must an individual be in order to receive disability insurance benefits according to program changes authorized by Congress? E. Bishop Hill, district manager of the Harrisburg Social Security office, expects that between now and June 30, large numbers of people who may be eligible to apply for benefits, will be asking this question.

The answer that the individual must have a disability so severe that it prevents him from doing any kind of work needs some explanation.

The rules in the Social Security law for deciding whether or not a person is disabled differ from rules in some other government and private disability programs.
This means that some disabled people, receiving payments for
"total disability" from another government agency or from a private company, may not be found eligible under the Social Security
law.

There are two main conditions
upon which disability benefits may be granted. They are:

(1) That the disability must be a physical or mental condition
which has lasted for six months or more and which is expected to continue indefinitely.

(2) That the disability resulted from an injury or illness, and is a condition which will show up in medical examinations and tests.
If the condition is a temporary one and is expected to improve with time or further medical treatment so that the individual will be able to return to work, he cannot qualify under the disability provisions.

Mr. Hill stresses that just because an individual is not able to do the kind of work he performed on his last job, or that he likes to do, or may have done in other jobs he held in the past, he will not necessarily be considered disabled under the social security
law.

Also, if a person is unemployed
because he cannot find a job, he
may not be regarded as disabled
under the law, even if his handicap does make it more difficult for him to find and hold a job.
The law states that the disability must be the direct cause of the individual's inability to work, to qualify him for disability benefits.

All disabled persons who apply for benefits based on their disability will have their names referred to their state vocational rehabilitation agency. Where possible, this agency will provide these disabled people with help in overcoming their handicaps so that they may become self-supporting.

In those cases where rehabilitation is not possible and the individual qualifies under the provisions mentioned above, disability benefits may be received. An individual in any one of the following three groups is eligible for such benefits.

(1) Disabled workers 50 years old, or older, can now apply for monthly social security disability payments.

(2) Disabled workers who are homes near the University may write to Mrs. Mabel Pulliam, director of housing.

because he cannot find a job, he
may not be regarded as disabled
under the law, even if his handi-
cap does make it more difficult

Condolence is extended to the immediate family, the brothers and sister of the late Mrs. Lorene Brannum.

Irrigation Boosts Corn Yields at Dixon Springs

DIXON SPRINGS—Four inches of irrigation water brought corn yields of 112 and 110 bushels an acre in 1955 and 1956 at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

L. E. Gard, Station researcher, reports that these yields were made without fertilizer other than basic soil treatment applied seven years earlier when the fields were renovated and put into grass and legumes.

This particular five-acre area of thin, grey timber soil was treated with 1,000 pounds of rock phosphate and three tons of lime an acre in 1947. Then the land was pastured for seven years with good stands of legumes and grasses.

Corn yields on this area without additional fertilizer and without irrigation in 1955 and 1956 were 87 and 81 bushels respectively, Gard says. Both seasons were about average in both rainfall and temperature.

Forty dollars worth of mixed fertilizer an acre plowed down resulted in a reduction of four bushels an acre in yield in 1955 and an increase of 11 bushels an acre, to 92 bushels, in 1956.

Irrigating the fertilized area increased corn yields from 112 to 118 bushels in 1955 and from 110 to 115 bushels in 1956.

In this experiment, plowing down the additional fertilizer did not pay either with or without irrigation, Gard points out. Instead, the emphasis on thin, timber soils should be put on bringing fertility levels up at the time of renovation and keeping a good growth of legume-grass cover on the fields until time to grow a crop of grain.

BROWNING, superintendent of the Cooperative Agronomy Research Center at Southern Illinois University, indicates differences between two of a number of winter wheat varieties in demonstration plots at the Center. Dual, left, one of the newer commercial varieties, has a normal maturity date and has been recommended as resistant to Hessian Fly damage. Knox is gaining popularity in the area as an early-maturing wheat and is shown entirely headed out while Dual has not yet produced heads. Road and Bridge Restrictions

Because of bad weather in the spring, highway commissioners often have a hard time keeping local roads passable. They get some help from the laws that allow highway authorities to place weight restrictions on local roads. These laws can be summarized as follows:

1. Local authorities (highway commissioners for township roads) may, by ordinance or resolution, prohibit the operation of vehicles or place limitations on the operation of trucks or impose limitations as to the weight on designated highways within their jurisdiction. These restrictions cannot be imposed for a period longer than 90 days in a calendar year. There must be some reasonable basis for this restriction, such as deterioration, rain, snow or other climatic conditions that would result in serious damage to the road if it were used fully during the restricted period.
2. In addition, local highway authorities may, by ordinance or resolution, adopt permanent rules to prohibit trucks or commercial vehicles or impose weight limitations on certain highways.
3. The restrictions in the ordinance or resolution must be erected on an appropriate sign at each end of the portion of any highway that is affected. Bridges also may be posted. A bridge is part of the highway, and reasonable weight limits may be imposed by ordinance or resolution.
4. In addition to local law-enforcing officers, the state highway police also have the responsibility of patrolling the public highways and making arrests for violations of these provisions.
5. It is a misdemeanor for any person to violate these regulations, and a conviction carries a fine of $1 to $100, with greater fines authorized for subsequent convictions within one year.
6. A violator is also subject to civil action for damage to the road, and this action may be brought by the authority in control of the highway.

Comment: The power to restrict truck travel on local roads is quite broad, and there is no clear distinction between the law that allows a 90-day restriction and the one that allows permanent restrictions. In either case, highway officers must keep in mind the needs of farmers who must transport their farm products. And farmers must remember that all-weather roads are expensive, but they can have them in exchange for some paper which is predominantly green.

A 3/4-inch plastic tube with a constant supply of running water can carry enough water for 500 pullets on range or a 4-H Club litter of pigs on clean ground.

Tornadoes usually move in a northeasterly direction at 25 to 40 miles an hour.

Grass, Legumes For Profit And Soil Saving

By Tom Morgan
W. U. Conservationist

There are approximately 25,000 acres of Saline county farm lands that are best suited for the production of pastures. In addition there are about 40,000 acres of crop land each year that should be in pasture if rotations are being followed which will protect and improve these crop lands. These 65,000 acres of grasses and legumes can contribute considerably to the annual gross income of the agricultural industry if efficiently used.

Dean Rusk, of the University of Illinois, College of Agriculture, writing in circular No. 649 published by the College of Agriculture, had this to say regarding the use of grasses and legumes: "We have made considerable progress in adopting sound erosion-control practices. At the same time, I think that many of us agree that here in Illinois we have lagged in our use of large enough acreages of legumes and grasses."

At the Dixon Springs Experiment Station good grass and legume mixtures grown on land properly treated with lime, phosphate and potash produced 435 pounds of beef and lamb gains per acre during the grazing period in 1951. Figuring these gains at the present prices for beef and lamb they would return a very substantial gross income per acre for land devoted to pasture.

If the 65,000 acres in Saline which normally should be in grass and legumes each year produced even one half as much gains as the Dixon Springs results they would make a sizeable contribution to the annual gross income of Saline county farmers. Good pastures properly utilized pay in dollars. They pay also in the saving from erosion of our precious top soil.

The Saline County Soil Conservation District can assist any interested farmer in planning a good pasture program for his farm as a part of a conservation farming plan for the operation of his farm.

No Subsoil Moisture Deficiency This Year

URBANA—A survey of Illinois soil moisture conditions by soil scientists at the University of Illinois shows a great contrast from last year.

Samples taken at 30 locations over the state in mid-April showed soil moisture to be good. With the rainfall since that time, the state as a whole has no areas where subsoil moisture is deficient.

Most areas report that tile lines are flowing. This flow is a good indicator that the subsoil has been recharged with water. In view of the high moisture, soil specialists stress the need to give close attention to drainage systems to insure an adequate discharge of water from the land.

A year ago subsoil moisture was very short in the spring. Prospects for the corn crop seemed dim unless plenty of rain fell during July and August, when corn needs the most water. Fortunately, rainfall was very favorable in these months last year.

This year, with larger supplies of subsoil moisture, the corn crop will not be so dependent on heavy rains in July and August.

Farmers "Babying" Corn More Than Necessary

URBANA—You may be "babying" your corn more than is necessary when you prepare the soil for planting.

This conclusion of University of Illinois research workers is based on tests conducted on eight Illinois farms in 1956 and on other research by the department of agricultural engineering over the past five years.

In the 1956 farm tests, the researchers compared the common method of preparing the seedbed with plowing and planting at the same time and planting on ground plowed with a leveling or packing tool attached to the plow.

The plow-plant method produced yields about equal to the conventional method, according to J. W. Pendleton and Wendell Bowers, who assisted with the tests.

Results from only this one year's test do not mean that everyone should switch to plow-plant, the researchers point out. However they do feel that under proper soil conditions seedbed preparation can be reduced to one or two trips over the field without affecting corn yields.

One of the main advantages of reduced tillage is lower production costs. Every trip over the field you can eliminate means a saving of around $1.00 an acre.

You'll also get better control of weeds with less tillage. When the soil between the rows is round and uneven, weed growth slows down. In many fields, weeds can then be controlled by spraying and one cultivation.

Less soil erosion takes place with a rough seedbed because it makes a better barrier against wind and water erosion. More water is absorbed and less runs off, carrying valuable top soil with it.

Fewer trips over the field also decrease soil compaction. In a few years a farmer may notice that the soil plows easier and breaks up more completely if he doesn't till so much.

With minimum tillage, the agricultural engineers point out that the plow must do a top-notch job of pulverizing the soil and turning under trash completely. The job must be well done to control weeds and prevent regrowth of the previous crop.

A good seedbed must be provided in the immediate area of the seed. With reduced tillage this may be especially hard to do on heavy, sticky or drouthy soils. Under these conditions, parts or all of the field will need an extra disking or culti-mulching.

COMRADES

Childhood is a brief span in the bridge of life.
Yet it is during the early years that we lay the foundation for all that is to come.

Church School is over, and Eileen and Johnny linger on the church steps, talking about the lessons they've learned this morning. They both are excited because, under their teacher's guidance, the stories of the Bible are beginning to come alive for them.

We're not going to predict a "happy ever after" ending. We're not going to say that having met in Church School, Eileen and Johnny will go on seeing each other in church each week and that ultimately they'll grow up, fall in love, and get married. (Though, who knows? Maybe they will at that!)

But we are saying—and deeply believing—that through Church School these children and thousands upon thousands of other children are receiving religious education, an ever-expanding lesson in good fellowship, wisdom, kindness, and tolerance.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

jealousy. It is a vicious circle.

CONCLUSION — We began this lesson by speaking of a broken home. Today we are told that one out of every four marriages ends in divorce in the United States. Add to this number the host of husbands and wives who are just "living together," and you have a rather sorry picture. If the United States falls before the urge of any "ism" from any other land, it will not be because of their superior military power. It will be because we have let immorality eat the foundations out from under the homes in our own country. If you are one who drinks, even socially, you would be most wise to take a good lesson from Isaac and Rebekah and their two sons, Jacob and Esau.

Genesis 27:30-41

GOLDEN TEXT: "He that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" (1 John 4:20)

INTRODUCTION — Jacob and Esau may be thought of as coming from a broken home. Their parents were living together, but there were misunderstandings and deceivings in that home. Isaac and Rebekah, their parents, had gotten off to a fine start in establishing their home. However, somewhere along the way they had let evil enter.

As always, a broken home is the seed-bed for trouble. The mother and one son connived together to betray the other son deceive the father. Jacob bought Esau's birthright for a mess of pottage and deceived his father to obtain the blessing which rightfully belonged to Esau.

Let me point out something to you. Esau felt victim to this scheme, because of his appetite. Today the jails, prisons, saloons and asylums are full of people who have sold themselves to satisfy their appetites for liquor. There are lots of Esaus in your community today!

I THE LOST BLESSING

(V. 30-33)

Isaac, the aged father, was deceived by Jacob and his mother. The mother and son went to great lengths to deceive Isaac, who was almost blind. They dressed Jacob up in raiment that had the smell of the field on them. Rebekah put the "skin of the kids of the goats" on Jacob's hands and neck. This made his hands and neck seem to be those of Esau when Isaac felt them.

No sooner had Isaac finished bestowing the blessing upon Jacob than did Esau come to his father to claim the blessing. Now, it has probably been sometime since he had sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.

Is that not just like people today? A man or woman sells themselves for drink. They go merrily on their way day after day. Then, one day they realize how foolish they have been. For many this realization comes too late. They have not the will power to turn back. How very sad it is to see one who has let drink become their master. They are a loss to themselves, their homes and their community. Thanks be to God, He is always ready to forgive and to remake a broken life and home.

II PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE

(V. 34-40)

Esau had to accept second best because of his appetite. We all know people who are playing second fiddle for the same reason today. No man nor woman can drink liquor and beer and ever expect to have the best that life can offer. This is as true as life itself. All you have to do is look about you for the proof.

When Esau came into his father's presence to claim his blessing, he little realized that he had waited too long. We do not know exactly how long it had been since he had sold his birthright to satisfy his appetite. We do know, however, that he waited too long.

See Esau falling down before his father in tears, begging for a blessing. Friend, no matter how far you have gone in selling yourself to Satan, if you will fall down before God and confess all your sins, He will forgive and give you a blessing!

III HATRED AND ITS RESULTS

(V. 41)

Back of every murder you will find hate or jealousy. Esau hated his brother, Jacob, and determined in his heart to kill him. Will you please note that actually all of this trouble started because of Esau's insane appetite? Many a person is locked behind prison bars today for exactly the same reason. They first took a social drink, just a cocktail. Later they said: "I can take it or leave it alone." Problems entered their lives. Jealousy and hatred developed. They did not control themselves. The result—murder! Hate breeds murder. Jealousy breeds hate. Social drinking breeds
